CHIME Foundation Certified Healthcare Executive Title Recognizes Dedication to Education

BURLINGTON, Mass. (PRWEB) July 17, 2018

Dimensional Insight, the maker of Diver Platform, a data management and analytics solution, is pleased to announce that George Dealy, Vice President of Healthcare Applications, recently became a CHIME Foundation Certified Healthcare Executive (CFCHE), one of the highest professional achievements in the industry. The College of Healthcare Information Management Executives (CHIME) Foundation awards certification to industry representatives who pass a comprehensive exam that evaluates their understanding of the healthcare IT environment.

“CHIME is an organization that recognizes emerging healthcare leaders who are fully committed to the healthcare IT environment. Those who obtain their CFCHE certification not only prove their extensive understanding of the industry, but their responsibility towards its improvement as well,” says Fred Powers, president and CEO of Dimensional Insight. “We are proud of this accomplishment and to have George as a valuable and integral part of our team.”

“Healthcare is undergoing a massive transformation,” said CHIME President and CEO Russell Branzell, CHCIO. “We are shifting to a value-based environment, improving coordination across the continuum and striving to reduce costs. Health IT is critical to achieving these goals, but to be effective it needs dedicated professionals. A CFCHE designation shows a high level of commitment to CHIME, our members and the industry as a whole as we work collectively to bring professional excellence to patient care.”

To enroll in the CFCHE program, candidates must have at least three years of experience at a CHIME Foundation member organization or qualifying healthcare organization or have one year at a qualifying organization and maintain their CHIME Certified Healthcare CIO status. In addition, they must have a baccalaureate degree or be enrolled in a baccalaureate program. To maintain their CFCHE status, they must pass the exam and participate in programs and events that continue their education as an IT leader. These qualifications ensure that the healthcare executive is truly dedicated to ongoing education, an important characteristic in an industry where patients pay the price for outdated systems and practices.

George has more than 25 years of information technology experience with past senior management roles in business development, product management, professional services, and sales. He holds a master’s in computer science from Union College and a bachelor’s in applied economics from Cornell University.

“The process of preparing for the CFCHE exam provided me with a better appreciation for the issues that healthcare leaders care about most, as well as perspective on how they approach those issues,” says Dealy. “I am honored to be among the first executives to obtain CFCHE certification.”
